

PROJECT CONFIDENTIALITY POLICY

ITF processes confidential information received from the development community and its member organisations as part of its core business function. This confidential information is respected through mutual non disclosure agreements, standard research agreements and membership agreements, signed by all relevant parties involved in the project.

However, some project information received by ITF is considered non confidential. This information is available to interested parties and used for marketing and public relations purposes.

The purpose of this policy statement is to document the project information considered non confidential as listed below:

1. Developer company name and name of principle investigator
2. Project title, acronym and non confidential project summary
3. Total project cost and total funding requested
4. Names of organisations who sponsor the project

20 August 2007